JAEGER'S BORDER

A report by Claas Relotius

INTRODUCTION

Electronic: Start audio track - Jaeger's Broder introducton

Recording

Die junge Mexikanerin Aleyda marschiert auf die Grenze zu, um in die USA zu fliehen. Der Amerikaner Jaeger wartet mit bewaffneten Bürgern auf der anderen Seite, um das zu verhindern. Für beide gibt es kein Zurück.

JAEGERS GRENZE – eine Reportage von Claas Relotius.

Nacht über der mexikanischen Wüste. Tausende Menschen mit Rucksäcken und kleinen Kindern auf dem Rücken, mit guten oder schlechten Absichten, marschieren nordwärts zur großen Grenze. Auf der anderen Seite, auf einem Berg in Arizona, stehen sechs Männer in Uniform und warten auf die Invasion. Sie tragen Munitionsgürtel, automatische Gewehre, schussichere Westen und ausgedachte Namen. Einer nennt sich Pain, Schmerz, er raucht Zigarre und sagt: „Ich will den Teufeln, die Amerika überrennen, in den Arsch treten.“ Einer heißt Luger, so wie die Pistole. Er hat Tarnfarbe im Gesicht und steuert eine Drohne über „Feindesland“. Drei andere, sie nennen sich Spartan, Nailer und Ghost, haben das Sternenbanner falsch herum gehisst, das Zeichen für den nationalen Notstand. Der sechste, ein bärenhafter Mann mit Militärhelm und dunklem Vollbart, Kampfname „Jaeger“, späht durch sein Nachtsichtgerät hinab in das stockdunkle Tal ...

(Flüstern) Er spricht von Krieg.

(Flüsterecho Ensemble: Krieg ... war ... guerra ...)

Das grünscharze Infrarotbild vor Jaegers Augen reicht weit über Sonora-Desert, eine Sandwüste, die fast so groß ist wie Deutschland. In ihr wimmelt es von Klapperschlangen, Geiern, Skorpionen, „und in jeder verdammten Nacht“, sagt Jaeger, „ein paar Tausend Koyoten auf zwei Beinen ...“

For musicians: play the music of the introduction following the cue of the conductor. This music is played while the dancers and singers are changing their costume

The duration of this section will depend on the scene.
Follow the conductor for the instructions.

The musical score is written for six instruments: Bass Clarinet, Baritone Sax, Percussion, Piano, Violin, and Double Bass. The time signature is 3/4. The score is divided into measures by vertical dashed lines.

- Bass Clarinet: Starts with a box labeled "wind sound (no pitch)" at p. The rest of the part is a sustained line with dynamics mf and p.
- Baritone Sax: Starts with a box labeled "wind sound (no pitch)" at p. The rest of the part is a sustained line with dynamics mf and p.
- Percussion: Starts with a box labeled "Tam tam" with a tam tam icon and the instruction "Rub the tam tam with a superball rubber mallet. Free velocity". The rest of the part is a sustained line with dynamics mf and p, ending with a "change to vib." instruction and a vibraphone icon.
- Piano: The instruction is "Play on the strings inside the piano. You can play freely on the low part. The notes are marked only as a reference." The score shows a series of notes in the bass clef.
- Violin: Starts with a box labeled "bow on the bridge" at p. The rest of the part is a sustained line with dynamics mf and p. There is a section labeled "as fast as possible different velocity from violin 2" with a graphic of a bow stroke. The part ends with "ord." and a 3/4 time signature.
- Double Bass: Starts with a box labeled "bow on the tailpiece" at p. The rest of the part is a sustained line with dynamics mf and p. There is a section labeled "fast" and "slow" with a graphic of a bow stroke.

Dancers will bring the photographs. Duration: 3 minutes. "BRIDGE"

IN A HALL OF THE MUSEUM

Dancers:

As the audience enters, we see the actors walking around the stage space; they look at the exhibits as if they were museum visitors. They have brochures in their hands, exchanging ideas about what they see. A man gesticulates passionately in front of an object; his girlfriend, annoyed, knocks her brochure on his head and drags it behind her. A group of teenagers look at the enema vessel, they make obscene gestures, fart noises with their mouths, laugh out loud. Mia, with her museum badge around her neck, walks around nervously; she tries not to let anything show, making notes on her tablet as if she were writing down data concerning the exhibits. Every now and then, she furtively glances at her watch. An old woman comes up to her and asks her to explain one of the objects; she complies very graciously.

A voice sounds over the loudspeaker announcing that the museum is about to close. A security guard enters to give the stragglers a leg up. The man discusses something with Mia, she nods. When he is already back in the doorway, the guard turns and calls out:

GUARD: Good night, Mia!

She greets him back with a smile. She is alone now. She looks around uncertainly. She takes an envelope from a pocket and from it a letter. You can see that she has read it many times. She reads it again. Looks at her watch. Sighs. Suddenly the lights go out, only the emergency lights stay on.

From afar, footsteps can be glimpsed, various door leaves gradually opening, the footsteps coming closer and closer. The door to the hall opens and a figure enters. It is Paloma; in front of her face she wears the mask of a Mayan goddess. At some point in the first part she should take it off. She also carries a large backpack.

After a short gap, the word 'Whispers' is written above the staff, followed by four 'ha' syllables, each marked with a quarter note on a single line.

MARIA DELGADO
The dance of the puma-woman

Spoken freely

Im wirklichen Leben ist sie Krankenpflegerin und ernährt mit ihrem spärlichen Lohn drei Kinder und ihren arbeitslosen Mann: Maria Delgado, könnte man meinen, ist eine ganz normale Mexikanerin.

Doch in gewissen Nächten folgt sie dem Ruf ihrer Ahnen und verwandelt sich in etwas, von dem die Welt nichts weiß und wissen darf.

Neben ihrem vollen Terminkalender mit zahllosen Patientenbesuchen und Apothekengängen führt Maria Delgado noch einen zweiten: den Kalender der Maya. Sie lebt in gegensätzlichen Zeiten und Welten. Und die mächtigere der beiden ist nicht die moderne Alltagswelt von Mexiko City. Was Marias Leben wirklich regiert, ist in dem geheimen Kalender verzeichnet, den ihre Vorfahren vor mehr als 1.500 Jahren errechnet haben. Es sind Hieroglyphen. Doch die Nächte, die sie markieren, sind die bedeutendsten. In ihnen wird Maria zum Puma.

4

B

E.

Sound of an ocarina

(Es sind drei. Drei Marias. Drei Pumas.)

- (Laufschrift): Dass Claas Relotius die angebliche Puma-Frau getroffen hat, ist nicht bewiesen. In seinem Terminkalender steht an den fraglichen Tagen nur ein Gebrauchtwagenkauf. Anmerkung der Redaktion.

2'38"

Ihre drei Kinder schlafen, ihr Mann hockt beim Kartenspiel in einer Bar. Die Schublade, die Maria Delgado öffnet, ist normalerweise fest verschlossen. Ihr Inhalt erinnert an eine Verkleidekiste: Federschmuck, Fächer, Spiegel, Schminke und ein Fell der besonderen Art – ein Puma-Fell. Maria streicht es glatt und legt alles an seinen Platz.

5

B

Silence

3'03"

Bedeutsam sind nicht die Dinge an sich, sondern der Ritus und die kultische Kraft, die er ihnen verleiht. Das Puma-Fell ist synthetisch, das Blut, das den Göttern geopfert wird, ein Mix aus Ketchup und Rotwein. Doch nichts ist mehr, was es ist, wenn Maria Delgado ihre Hütte durch die Hintertür verlässt. In der Ferne brennen nächtliche Feuer. Wer sie entzündet hat, weiß niemand. Doch sie führen Maria an ihr Ziel: den Eingang zur Unterwelt.

6

E.

- (Laufschrift) Darüber, wo dieser Eingang sich befindet, schweigt sich Relotius aus. Anm. d. Red.

3'45"

Geschmeidig bewegt sich Maria durch die Dunkelheit. Ihre Schritte sind lautlos, katzenhaft, in ihren Augen blitzt etwas Animalisches auf. Wer sie jetzt stoppen wollte, den würde sie vermutlich in Stücke reißen. Die Höhle, von der Maria magisch angezogen wird, hat Zähne und sieht aus wie ein riesiges Maul. Ein Schlund aus Finsternis.

7

E.

Ocarina

- (Laufschrift) Fehlende Ortsangabe. Siehe oben. D. Red.

4'15"

Im Maul erwartet sie eine Gestalt, deren Aussehen kaum noch menschlich ist, ein rot-weiß geschminkter Riese mit Hörnern und einem Fellüberwurf. Seine Gesten sind gebieterisch, seine Aura und Hoheit zum Niederknien. Es ist Chac, der Regengott.

8

Maria ist nicht allein. Puma-Frauen und Männer aus allen Winkeln der Slums zieht es zu Chac, dem Gott der Indigenen, der Regen und Fruchtbarkeit spendet. Der Rauch ihrer Blutopfer schwängert die Luft. Es riecht harzig, bitter und beißt in der Nase. Chac gibt im Rhythmus der Trommeln gurgelnde Laute von sich und die Maya antworten ihm in einer Sprache, die kein Spanier versteht.

- (Laufschrift) Auf Relotius ' Diensthandy finden sich keinerlei Fotos von oder Selfies mit den Beteiligten bzw. dem Regengott.

Verdammt, darum geht es doch nicht! Es geht darum zu sehen, was man glaubt, und nicht darum zu glauben, was man sieht! Es geht um Ahnen, Götter, Geister! Um eine alte, unterdrückte Religion!!!

Sie mag nicht beweisbar oder wissenschaftlich sein, nicht messbar oder logisch. Aber es gibt sie!

Es gibt die Puma-Frau! Den Kult! Ihr werdet sehen! Ihr ... Ihr werdet die Puma-Frau sehen, wenn ihr nicht völlig verblendet seid von Logik und Wissenschaft! Sie wird kommen, und wie! Die Puma-Frau wird euch heimsuchen in der Nacht – der Nacht der Maya, dem Kreuz im Kalender! Sie wird über euch herfallen im Schlaf! Euch in den Arsch fahren! Euch auf verrückte Reisen schicken!! Und dann werdet ihr die Wahrheit wissen.

¹¹ Nichts als die Wahrheit, glaubt mir! Die Stunde der Wahrheit ist nah!

Das Aussterben einer Art zieht das Aussterben anderer Arten nach sich. Laut Aussage der „Internationalen Naturschutz-Union“ ist eine von vier Säugetierarten und eine von drei Amphibienarten akut vom Aussterben bedroht. Schon jetzt verzeichnet die Tier- und Pflanzenwelt das größte Aussterben seit der Kreidezeit.

Short pause

(One by one, the singers / dancers get up and slowly leave. The crowd becomes smaller and smaller, the stage emptier and emptier, more and more extinct. In the end, there is no one left).

Everyone has left. The stage is empty. The last breath fades away. Dead silence. Very gradually, louder the VOICE-OVER voice can be heard.
